You'll be required to answer some questions about any work you completed each week as well as any other income you received. Photo Courtesy: JGI/Tom Grill/Getty Images After you've lost your job, contact your state unemployment agency as soon as possible. Photo Courtesy: skaman306/Moment/Getty Images Once your claim has been processed, you will need to make an appointment at your nearest American Job Center for your state or set up an account online. If you're wondering how to file a claim after all the changes, we can help you figure it out. Our peers over at Ask.com have the answers. Finally, keep in mind that unemployment benefits are taxable, so it's generally wise to choose to have taxes withheld from each payment when you first open your claim. Step 5: Collect Your Unemployment Benefits Most claims are processed within two to three calendar weeks or 10 business days, although delays could occur during times of high claim volumes. If you lost your job due to the pandemic or other reasons, here are the steps to take next to file an unemployment claim online. Step 1: Contact Your State Unemployment Agency Whether you were laid off because of the pandemic or lost your job due to other unforeseen circumstances, filing for unemployment benefits is one way to cover a portion of your monthly bills while you're between jobs. To qualify for unemployment, an individual who lost their job must be eligible for work, able to work and actively seeking employment. It depends on the reason you were fired, and the rules vary by state. These state-run agencies give people access to job listings and career training resources, and registration is mandatory to receive your unemployment insurance benefits. During this interview, you will be asked specific questions about your employment background and other information mentioned in your claim. Since those early days of chaos, most states have adapted and made improvements to handle all the claims. Virtual systems also reduce errors and speed up the claim process. Photo Courtesy: SDI Productions/E+/Getty Images When you file your claim, you will be asked for some personal information, including your name, address(es), social security number (SSN), last 18 months of employment history, a record of wages earned and the reason and dates for your employment termination. Additionally, if your application is denied for any reason, you have the right to file an appeal to try to overturn the denial. Step 3: Verify Your Identity During the initial application process, each state's unemployment division will ask you to verify and authenticate your identity. Nearly all unemployment agencies accept claims online, especially in light of the COVID-19 pandemic. Lee Edge of Chaos (Love on the Edge) - Molly E. These types of requests are typically very time sensitive. Photo Courtesy: Justin Sullivan/Getty Images In some cases, an unemployment official will interview you to clarify and verify details regarding your case and your identity. These steps may take place as you're filing your application, or they could be the last steps in determining your eligibility. If you want to make sure your claim isn't delayed, be sure to complete all the sections fully and accurately. MORE FROM ASKMONEY.COM Depending on the state you reside in, you will be eligible to apply for unemployment benefits online, in person, on the phone or by mailing in a claim form. Even worse, months later, many jobless people were still desperately trying to cut through all the red tape and the massive volume of people to file their own unemployment claims. While you may be breathing an initial sigh of relief once your initial claim is processed, be sure to maintain your eligibility status by continuing your job search as directed. Step 6: File Your Weekly Payment Request and Keep Up the Job Search Once you start receiving unemployment benefits, you have to file weekly or biweekly (varies by state) payment requests online to be paid — no exceptions. If you have any difficulty locating your local center, contact your state unemployment agency for assistance. nauczycielamatura podstawowa (Love on the Edge) Edge of Chaos - Molly E. The state agency will provide guidance on that as well as any other issues that could impact your claim. Step 2: Determine Your Eligibility As stated earlier, you need to meet certain criteria in order to be eligible for unemployment benefits. Without a doubt, the ongoing pandemic throws a bit of a wrench into the process of actively seeking work, so that component may vary from state to state and could change at any time. Texas, for example, waived their work search requirement for many months but reinstated it on November 1. (Exceptions are currently in place to qualify independent contractors and the self-employed, but those rules expire at the end of 2020.) Moreover, if you willingly quit your job, are an independent contractor or otherwise self-employed, or can't go back to work for health or other reasons, you might not qualify. Although this rule may vary by state at times due to special circumstances (like a global pandemic), the general rule of thumb is that you're expected to pursue work leads every week and report your work search efforts in your weekly claim. Do you have COVID-19-specific questions about unemployment benefits and stimulus checks? Photo Courtesy: svetikd/E+/Getty Images Finally, it's important to keep in mind that unemployment benefits are usually contingent upon a recipient doing their part to actively look for a new job. By the end of April, a staggering 30 million Americans had filed for unemployment benefits. Long story short, where you're currently residing might not be the state that will pay you unemployment benefits if you haven't lived there long. Set up email notifications, if possible, and watch closely for any messages requesting additional information. If you fail to answer the questions correctly — or don't consent to this process — you will most likely be asked to provide the agency with documents that verify your identity. Step 4: File Your Claim Once you confirm your eligibility, it's time to file your claim. If you fail to file your weekly claim, your benefits may be delayed or stopped altogether. In some cases, people who were fired, suspended or asked to take a leave of absence don't qualify for unemployment. The online process isn't just helpful for pandemic safety reasons.
